Dear Grace Church Family and Friends,

Last week, I was walking to yoga one evening, when I stopped at the corner of Colesville and 2nd Avenue, just across from the Transit Center. As I waited for the light to change, I felt a tap on my shoulder. “Hi,” the young woman said.

“Hi,” I responded.

“I just wanted you to know that I came to your church on Easter, and it meant so much to me, the words, the music.”

I’m not sure how the woman recognized me, since I was wearing my workout clothes and a baseball hat instead of my clerical collar, but as the two of us spent a few minutes standing at the corner, chatting, I felt very proud to be part of the Grace community and the way in which we had clearly touched this woman’s life.

The truth is you never know how you can make a difference to someone. A word. A gesture. A small act of kindness. When you embody the love of Jesus, you can change another person’s life, even for just one moment.

And so, as you go about your day, or your week, share that love with someone. Be Jesus for someone you encounter. It can mean everything to that person.

See you in church,
Andrew
